Rediscovery Sale, Wednesday 17th July

This week's rediscovery sale was as buoyant as ever: as is often the case, it was the unusual which caught the bidders' eyes ~ a good vintage stage lamp made £120, but the star of the sale was a very unusual mid nineteenth century silver gilt novelty watch with a fusee movement which, despite needing attention, had no problems reaching £800. Other silverware included a good set of early nineteenth century decanter labels which made £130.

Among the jewelry we had a nice clean amethyst ring which made £110 and £130 for a silver gilt tennis bracelet set with multicoloured stones. Militaria is always sought after, a WW2 sergeant's uniform made £125 and a vintage tank radio set made £190.

In the furniture section there was good furniture ~ when furnishing a house, why buy new when you can buy good quality antiques with charm and character? The star of the furniture section was a carved Chinese stand which made £170, though the lot which got the most smiles was an electric Batman car.
